

Mohammed Erfan Gamal (Profile)

Head, Administrative Control Authority

With several high-profile corruption cases emerging in recent years from within the ranks of the Egyptian government, pressure is on its accountability bodies to bring about meaningful reform. With his term limit extended in March 2017 for a further four years, Mohamed Erfan Gamal sits atop Egypt's anti-corruption efforts. The question remains as to whether he can genuinely tackle corruption whilst catering to stakeholders with a vested interest in maintaining the new status quo.
